It is increasingly recognised that EU development cooperation policy has failed to meet its stated aims. In the policy doesn't work, why bother with it? The authors assess why EU development policy has become largely ineffective, and the growing influence of US and international actors such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund within the EU such as the enlargement of its membership and the resulting shifts in priorities. It is this analysis of internal and external factors affecting the decline of EU development policy that makes this study both innovative and unique. It brings together an impressive range of contributors from different disciplines resulting in a thorough and intelligent assessment of the debate. This study will appeal to advanced level undergraduates and academics of European politics in general, EU integration, development studies, and International Relations.
