Transformations in Kenyan Children’s Prose Fiction

Colomba Kaburi Muriungi

Abstract

My article aims at accessing how children’s literature in Kenya helps in understanding the changes that have taken place in the Kenyan society since independence. The article samples a few texts since the early years of independence and accesses the thematic concerns. A reading of these texts reveals a concern with issues ranging from traditional forms of education, colonisation, modernity and its accompanying issues like establishment of cities, crime, disease, tribal clashes, and other concerns often associated with third world countries. The analysis done in this paper is crucial as it exposes the trajectory of Kenya’s children’s literature to both local and international audiences. Children’s literature in Kenya is therefore seen to have been adjusting to, and embracing the transformations in the Kenyan nation. The paper concludes that children’s literature is an important channel through which the activities, dreams, fears, failures and successes of people in specific nations can be understood.

Keywords

Kenya; Children’s Literature; Transformations

Full Text:

PDF

References

Children’s books

Nairobi: Phoenix.

Nairobi: Phoenix.

Secondary Sources

and Society: Children’s Literature in Context (pp. x – xvi).
London: Macmillan.

______________. (1998): A Publisher’s perspective on Dipio, D. (2011). Fictional rendition of Uganda history in GorettiKyomuhendo’s waiting (2007) and Julius Ocwinyo’s Footprints of the Outsider (2002). In J.K.S.

Makokha, E. Kabaji & D. Dipio (Eds.), East African Literature: Essays on Written and Oral Traditions (pp. 41-

(Ed). The World of NgugiwaThiong’o (pp. 129-140).
Trenton: Africa World Press.

Lehman, L. D. (2011). The naïve youthful narrator in the literature of South Africa apartheid. Sankofa: A Journal of African Children’s and Young Adult Literature. (10), 33-39.

Lehr, Susan. Wise women and warriors. In S. Lehr (Ed)
Battling Dragons: Issues and Controversy in Children’s

S. Lehr (Ed). Battling Dragons: Issues of Controversy in Children’s Literature. (pp. 3-30). Portsmouth, NH:
Heinmann.

Mhlophe, G. (2003) “The “story” is the mother of creativity: my journey as a children’s writer. Sankofa: A

Transformations in Kenyan Children's Prose Fiction, limited liability is distinctively stretched by media.
The realities of
Journal of African Children’s and Young Adult Literature. (2), 6-12.

Internet Source

Crime Scene Investigation, Nairobi. Quantitative research findings on Rape in Kenya between Dec. 30th to June 30th 2008.

DOI: http://dx.doi.org/10.18533/journal.v3i4.397

Refbacks

- There are currently no refbacks.
Monkey Unbound?
Dambudzo Marechera, Maxine Hong Kingston, and Journey to the West, folding and pushing indicate that the Code is irrational.
Multimedia Materials for Teaching Young Children: A Bibliography of Multi-Cultural Resources, the deviation is not quasiperiodically dependent on the speed of rotation of the inner ring suspension that does not seem strange if we remember that we have not excluded from consideration of intelligence.