The 'atmosphere of the place and the spirit of the people': why historians visit battlefields when writing operational history. [A version of this paper was presented at the Genres of History: Australian Historical Association Biennial Conference, Australian National University, Canberra, 3-7 July 2006].]
To cite this article: James, Karl. The 'atmosphere of the place and the spirit of the people': why historians visit battlefields when writing operational history. [A version of this paper was presented at the Genres of History: Australian Historical Association Biennial Conference, Australian National University, Canberra, 3-7 July 2006.] [online]. Sabretache, Vol. 48, No. 1, Mar 2007: 33-37. Availability: <https://search.informit.com.au/documentSummary;dn=200704739;res=IELAPA> ISSN: 0048-8933. [cited 25 Jul 18].

Personal Author: James, Karl;
Document Type: Journal Article
ISSN: 0048-8933
Subject: Historiography; Military history; War; Archives; Veterans; World War 1; Primary documents; World War 2;
Identifier: Gallipoli; Kokoda
Peer Reviewed: Yes