Abstract: This book describes developments in contemporary Russian painting since the demise of Communism. It explores the gradual rise of dissident and radical art and the emergence of new artistic freedoms which stand in stark contrast to the stagnant years of official art endorsed by the former Soviet establishment. Featured here are profiles of 48 artists, including painters who entered the Moscow artistic scene in the early 1970s, the Sots artists, and representatives of the conceptualist Mukhomor group.
