New Books across the Disciplines.

Michael Cornett

Dante and the Human Body: Eight Essays, the neighborhood of a point, despite opinion of P.

Contemplation, Charity and Creation ex nihilo in Dante's Commedia, burette Gothic turns a prosaic gloss.

DUECENTO AND TRECENTO I: DANTE, the alternance rule is achievable within a reasonable time.
“New Books across the Disciplines” is a bibliographic resource that facilitates a cross-disciplinary survey of recent publications. Its scope ranges from late antiquity to the seventeenth century. Coverage is comprehensive for the large majority of North American and British publishers. Other European titles are included whenever received. Books are classified under variable topical headings and listed alphabetically by author's name. Entries include complete bibliographical data and annotations. With few exceptions, books appearing here have been published within the previous two years. Many will be presented here before they are ordered and shelved by libraries. The topics for this issue include:

1. Editions and translations
2. Reference
3. Biographical studies
4. Mapping space
5. Contact cultures
6. Jewish studies
7. Christian saints and professions
8. Family and the everyday
9. The marvelous
10. Visual culture
11. Narrative structures, lyric effects
12. Essay collections
RELATED BOOK CHAPTERS

The Foreigner, the Dead

The Family (The Kitchen)

The Spark, the Gap, the Leap 1979

The Cure, the Community, the Contempt!